Needs Clear Head

Comments By W. C. Nix on Structural Steel Work and on Plant Juice.

"A structural steel worker needs a clear head and strong nerves as well as muscles," observes Mr. W. C. Nix, of 1468 Mystle avenue, this city. Mr. Nix 1408 Myrtie avenue, this city. Mr. Nix further said:

"I greatly apprediate your Plant Juice I have had trouble with my stomach the last four years. I would try different treatments that were recommended but they did not reach my case. My stomach would bloat after meals and my food seemed to lie in one solid chunk; that soon affected my nerves. In my business, structural steel work, one needs a clear head and steady nerves as well as muscles. I tried the first bottle of Plant Juice without much faith: I had tried so many things that had failed. It has helped me from the first. My stomach feels all right: does not bloat and my appetite is good. It is surely the right treatment for the stomach and nerves is Plant Juice the right treatment, as Mr. Nix believes, but also for all derangements of liver, kidneys and blood as well. When taken into the system it at once abtacks all disease centers, and begins the work of elimination and correction. As a system cleanser, general strengthener and curative. Plant Juice is without an equal. Call on the Plant Juice man at Kelly & Pollard's drug store.

Is Charged by Judge T. S. Maxev to Probe Neutrality Law Violations.

A charge to the federal grand jury to make a rigid examination of all cases of violations of the neutrality law and of the president's proclamation was given by judge T. S. Maxey when he opened federal court in a special session in this city at 11 oclock Monday morning.

The special session is to try civil cases because of the great number of neutrality cases and criminal cases which are to come at the regular October term of the court in El Paso, which would necessarily take up the entire time of the usurf. For this reason, judge T. S. Maxey granted a special term of two weeks for civil cases.

W. W. Evans, of El Paso, was chosen as the foreman of the grand jury. The petit jurors were also called for Monday morning, but as only 11 were retained to serve, a special venire of 20 petit jurors was called for and the jury commissioners met Monday morning to draw the 20 additional names.

All of the officers of the court arrived from the east Sunday, most of them coming from San Antonio. The outoftown efficers of the court are: Judge T. S. Maxey, clerk D. H. Hart, United States attorney C. A. Boynton, deputy United States marshals John Dibrell and L. H. Anderson, court reporter C. E. Pinckney and C. E. Roberts, secretary to C. A. Boynton. The local officers of the court are deputy clerk George Chiver, assistant United States marshals J. H. Rogers and H. R. Hillebrand.

The court, after the charge to the jurors, was given a recess until Monday afternoon. The grand jurors went into immediate session. All of the witnesses on the various cases were required to be present Monday morning.

Many of the Mormons Are Returning, but Some Fear to Go Back.

Five hundred rebels, said to be led by Rojas, have returned to the Chihuahua Mormon tolonies and are now near Colonia Pacheco. This information was received at the Mormon headquarters Monday morning by telephone from the Bocker construction camp, near Pacheco, to Pearson and from there by telegraph to El Paso. Rojas is reported to have come back from Sonora to the mountain colonies of the Mormons and is now in control of that district. Federals have been sent out against the rebels.

the mountain colonies of the Mormons and is now in control of that district. Federals have been sent out against the rebels.

A report was also received at the headquarters that Alfred Boyd, who had gone to the Booket camp for some cattle, had disappeared, but L. E. Booker received a message Monday saying that Boyd was all right, but had been stopped by the returning rebels.

A number of men returned from the colonies on the last train, and more went in again this morning. They are anxious to take advantage of the liberality of the United States government and ship out some furniture, provisions and animals, if the rebels will permit them. They say notices are posted in public places by the federals that no foreigners will be allowed to have or carry arms; that everything of the kind will be confiscated by the ruling officials. They give as a reason for this, so it is reported, that they are afraid of intervention and they are short of arms and ammunition, so want all they can secure. They have always said that in case of intervention rebel and federals will join forces. It is reported that a number of rebels were sent from Colonia Pacheco into Pearson to feel of the spirits of the federals in possession there. They took the red from their hats, went into the federals in possession there. They took the red from their hats, went into the federal camps and gave their "enemies" the "brazo," and spent a very pleasant day with them.

Some of the men down there have written for their families and many of the families have gone. Others have prepared to go, but before starting they have received letters telling them not to come. Other men have come for their families and have gone back without them. Some of the men who bitterly opposed the exodus of the colonists have written their families telling them they don't want them to return to Mexico and saying they are very glad they are out; that things do not look good to them even now. Furniture, cows and horses are being located, but those in possession refuse, often, to

Mr. Jackson, a miller, has every kind of personal security guaranteed for his life, the lives of his family and for his property, and he will take his sons, Willie and Lee, back into Mexico. He has a paper eigned by Salazar saying he and his family and his property should all be exempt from the ravages of the rebel hand, and, notwithstanding all this, Lee was held at arms length by a rebel who was hunting arms, and commanded to produce guns. When he said there were none on the place, he was violently shaken and made to look down the barrel of a pis-tol and told that if he did not obey he would be killed. A half drunken com-panion rebel urged that he be shot, as he was "only a worthless kid," yet the boy will return this week to help his father grind wheat for the rebels.

Henry Smith went in this morning to look after his property.

H. S. Harris expects to go on the next train to size up the situation and interview both rebels and federals. Professor Guy C. Wilson leaves this weak for New York, where he will enter school for the coming school year. Professor Charles E. McClellan goes in a few days for Provo, Utah, to continue his course in the B. Y. U.

President Junius Romney will leave soon for Salt Lake City to attend the quarterly conference and to confer with the church authorities there.

Castillo was the former hody-guard of Francisco I. Madero, when the present president of Mexico was a rebel leader. He was a tall, old man, with long beard. Terrazas is said to have been killed by a nephew of Gen. Jose de la Crus Sanchez, who was himself killed a few minutes later, when a rebel buillet hit him in the chin.

RUMORED CHANGE FOR THE LOCAL MEXICAN CONSUL THE LOCAL MEXICAN CONSUL
The local Mexican consul, who has been stationed in El Paso during the redent revolution, is reported to be slated for a promotion in the consular service of the Mexican government, to be transferred to a post in Europe.

He was consul general to Italy with station at Genoa when he came to El Paso as consul on the special mission of handling the revolutionary situation. "I do not know where I will go, when I will go, or if I am going to any other position," the Mexican consul said. "I have had no information regarding a change."

Vega, who was formerly in business at Cananea, was charged with having assisted the Yaqui indians to revolt and later with having operated with the rebel leader. Emilia Campa.

Situation Quieter.

The military situation is much calmer than it has been for weeks. It is said that threats of Salazar and Rojas to iointly attack Agua Prieta were made for the purpose of keeping the federal troops on the border while the rebel bands could loot ranches and mining camps unmolested.

J. R. and Walter Blocker on Friday crossed at Dryden from their Piedras Blanca ranch in Mexico, $00 head of mixed cattle, which are to be shipped to Oklahoma. It was the intention to make a much larger import, but rebels under Orozco, who were near demanded an export tax of $5 per head. There are, too, a sand of 300 camped on the Cibola canyon, reported from here last week, and the command that captained Musquiz which is distant from here about $0 miles, besides several smaller parties, all of whom make no secret of the fact that they are awaiting Orozco and his men from Olinaga and will join him.

Ike Billings, a prominent ranchman of this place, has in his employ a Mevican who has just returned from the Burro mountains. The man stated that there were 1100 fully armed and equipped men there, awaiting Orozco'n advance. That their plans were freely discussed and that they were to attack and capture C. P. With the small rebell bands left in Chihnahua to keep the rallway lines out of commission, and rebels in Sonora keeping the bulk of Tellez's army occupied, there was nothing to prevent the revolutionary cause being fow more formidable than ever.

Orozco by the time he reaches the vicinity of C. P. Dinz will have a force of at least 4000 men, it is said.
